Foreword

- After a day in school Mary and Jean, like many others, depend upon bus transportation.

- Seniors, Helen, Faith, George, and Glenda add color to the Halloween Party.
- Wayne and Daniella receive awards for selling magazines from Chairman Lorraine.

Life requires many things of a man. Through the efforts of our administration, our teachers, and our board of education, we students of Franklin-East Taylor Township Joint High School have attained the four main things a man must learn to do, according to Van Dyke. In our many classes we have learned "to think clearly without confusion." The exemplary actions of these leaders have instilled within us the desire "to have pure, honest motives." Through their guidance in social and athletic activities has been kindled within us the urge "to love sincerely your fellow-men." Interwoven into all our scholastic life has been the necessity "to trust securely in God and Heaven."

Board of Education

The men pictured on this page are respected leaders in their communities and each has the welfare of the students of Franklin-East Taylor Joint High School at heart. This group has rendered many services through which our school system has gained its high standard of education.

High-ranking government officials have often said that a highly important organization in the local communities is the board of education. The board of education helps to develop the American Youth by furnishing the necessary equipment for the development of "future citizens."

The class of 1957 and the Jayonian Staff wish to thank whole-heartedly these men for their many sacrifices and services. May the senior class of tomorrow have the many opportunities and facilities which were available to us.

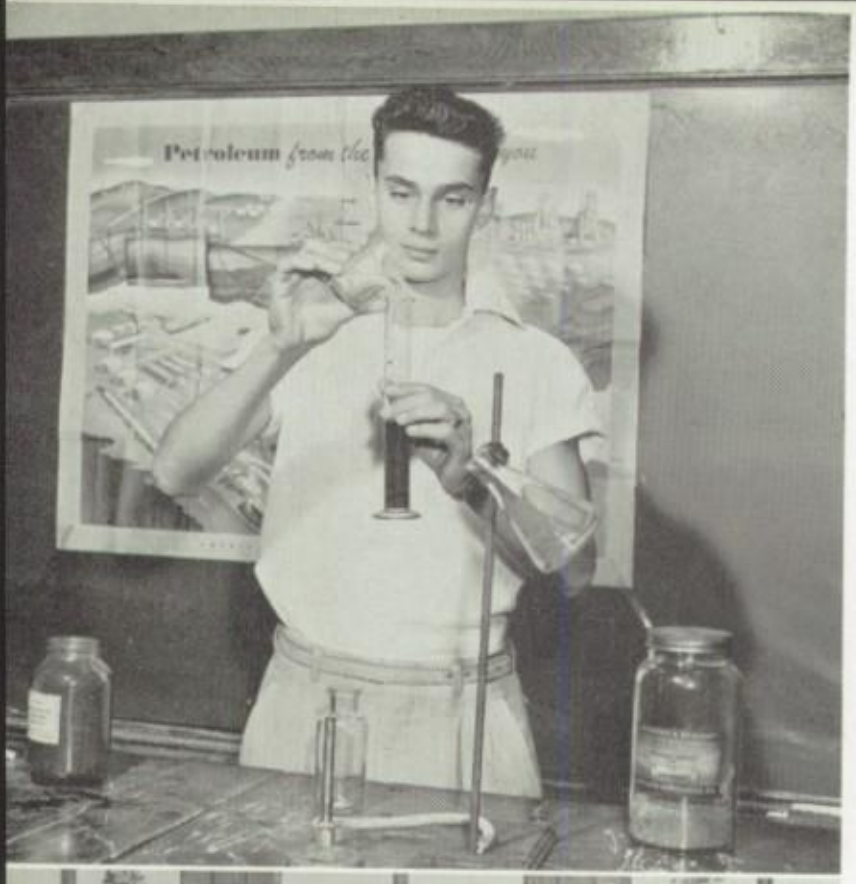
DR. H. C. TILLEY
SUPERVISING PRINCIPAL

Dr. H. C. Tilley, a native of Franklin Borough, attended Conemaugh Township and East Conemaugh schools. After graduating from Shippensburg Normal, he received from the University of Pittsburgh his Bachelor's, Master's and Doctor's degrees. He became supervising principal of our school in 1928. The constant work and untiring effort of Dr. Tilley is of great value to the high scholastic program and the business administration of our school.

MR. D. G. SEESE
HIGH SCHOOL PRINCIPAL

Mr. D. G. Seese, in 1930, became our first high school principal. He received his Bachelor's degree from Juniata College, his Master's degree from the University of Pittsburgh, and has completed study toward his Doctor's degree. He holds a diploma from the International Department of Religious Education of North America. Through Mr. Seese's scholarship achievement, interest in youth, and wealth of experience, many students have been guided along life's pathway.



"Experiments are the backbone of future scientists," says Robert.

Rean has learned well the art of dressmaking.

Senior Class History

Stories of past events are reviewed by Francis and Helen.

Our class of '57 began climbing the ladder of education in 1953. When we started the year as "Freshies," we felt very grown-up and proud. We entered the auditorium where we were assigned to homerooms 210 and 214 in charge of Mrs. Hargreaves and Mr. Hite, the latter our class sponsor. At first we had a feeling of strangeness, but it didn't take us long to become acclimated and to participate in all school activities. Among the ventures that we sponsored were two skating parties and a magazine campaign which placed a tidy sum in our class treasury. We topped our Freshie year by holding a talent show, which was a huge success.

In August of 1954 we began playing the role of "sophisticated Sophomores." This was a new and exciting experience. East Taylor students were now enrolled in our school, and we were compelled to add another homeroom with Mr. Moncilovich in charge. We elected capable officers to direct our year's program which included a talent show in which many of our own group actually participated. It was well attended. Many sophomores being members of the music groups, the class was well represented in the musical comedy "Our Best Foot Forward." We concluded activities for the year with a skating party.

Time marched on and with it we advanced to the "Jolly Junior" stage. Our advisor, Mr. Hite, urged greater care in all considerations. Following the election of officers, we chose as our class motto, "Forward Ever, Backward Never;" as our class colors, orchid and yellow; as our class flower, the Talisman rose. Trays of class rings were examined and a selection was made by a class committee. After a successful skating party, we conceived the idea of sponsoring a musical revue, "Jays A' Roarin'," proceeds from which were to be used toward purchase of a camera for the yearbook groups.

After a rigorous routine of practice sessions under the direction of Mr. Hite and Mr. Salem, we had our Junior Play "Love is in the Air" on April 13. As time for the Junior-Senior Prom approached, we found ourselves literally being lost in the thousands of yards of crepe paper as we decorated the gym. Long in our memories will remain the sight of the gold fish in the pond and the sound of the sweet music as we danced in the candle light. Our picnic at Idlewild furnished a perfect ending for the year.

At last we were Seniors and after a tally of votes, we were notified that our leaders for the year would be: George Pazin, President; Don Roberts, Vice President; Betty Lou Miller, Secretary; Bernice Stanislawczyk, Treasurer. A Jayonian staff was announced and immediately they began to plan a theme and layout for the yearbook. The entire school helped with the sale of Christmas cards and candy to secure funds to defray the expense of publication. On November 9 we presented our senior play "No More Homework." It was a huge success. These proceeds plus a skating party helped build our treasury. Outstanding in the literary achievements of our class was representation in the "I Speak For Democracy" contest by Virginia Lee Furman and the winning of essay contests by Faith Horner. This was quickly followed by our Senior Banquet at Wissinger's Inn and then, Graduation Day. It was a fitting climax to four years of high school study. What next????

Juniors . . .

OUR MINDS MUST NOW REACH TO UPPER LEVELS

Our first important venture of the year was the election of class officers. With their help and that of the class sponsor, Miss Vujcich, we worked diligently on our first activity, the magazine campaign. Much effort was put into this project and through it, a considerable sum was added to our treasury.

Next came the selection of class rings. There were many different styles from which to choose and they were all so beautiful that it was hard to pick the one really wanted. But finally a choice was made and "fathers reached for their wallets."

A skating party was held in November and it proved to be a financial success. We were rapidly raising money to put toward our prom.

Play time arrived in early spring. A three act comedy, "Room For the Groom" was presented under the direction of Mr. Hite and Mr. Salem. Many would-be actors and actresses tried out for the parts but, unfortunately, only a few could be selected. Those chosen were anxious and at the same time a little awed at the thought of appearing on the stage. After many practice sessions, these boys and girls proved themselves true thespians.

The biggest event of the year was the Junior-Senior Prom at which the class played host to the Seniors. Committees began planning in January. Many hours were spent working out decorations for a gay Paris setting. It was well worth the effort though, for the gym looked beautiful. Everyone was lost in the rapture of music by Steve Stralko and his orchestra.

Baseball, picnic time, and examinations quickly brought our junior year to an end. Members felt sorry to see it close, but anxiety at being seniors overcame this sadness. Summer vacation,—and then . . . those days we rule as seniors.

Sophomores . . .

WE FACE A NEW LINK IN SCHOLASTIC HIGHWAYS

August opened the doors to a group who gave evidence of becoming real go-getters.

Under the guidance of Mr. Strippy, they elected class officers, who they thought were best qualified to represent them.

They eagerly plunged into their studies, but also found time for the many extracurricular activities. Many sophomores took advantage of their chance to join the choruses and proved their ability to sing.

Quite a few gained recognition on the athletic field, others joined the school band and orchestra, while some made a place on the cheering squad. The remainder whole-heartedly backed these organizations.

A weiner roast to celebrate a football victory was held at the home of one of the students. It was a delightful occasion which will add to the many memories of the Sophomores.

Considerable interest was aroused by their success in selling Chirstmas cards to support the Jayonian, and by their display of home room decorations during the Christmas season.

In December, a bake sale which was the first activity to raise money for the treasury was held at the Franklin Municipal Building.

A skating party was planned for February. It provided thrills and spills, with all classmates attending to guarantee its success. A sample fair was then arranged for April, which brought in additional revenue for the treasury.

The last activity, the school picnic at Idlewild, was well attended by the members of the class; all reported having had a grand time.

Now the Sophomore year is ended. Activities are only memories, but students eagerly reach for a higher step on their ladder as Juniors.

Freshman Class . . .

In August 1956, the freshmen shyly opened the auditorium door to find their places among the older high school students. With Mr. Salem as advisor, they elected officers and started out to set the world on fire. By this time they were familiar with the high school routine and sponsored various events, such as a well-attended skating party and a talent contest. Many of them participated in the annual Halloween and Christmas parties held in the school gymnasium. Throughout the year the group enjoyed attending many of the football and basketball games.

They were afforded the opportunity of joining various clubs and many responded enthusiastically. Walking down the hall, you could hear snickers and giggles from the boys as they teased the girls who were being initiated into the Junior Y-Teens.

Finally, the end of the school term approached, and with it the school picnic at Idlewild Recreation Park. The rides were crowded with eager freshmen. Everyone had a wonderful time and already many were making plans for next year when they will attend the picnic as "Sophisticated Sophomores."

Eighth Grade . . .

The end of August brought the ringing of school bells and among those awakened were the eighth graders who now were one step closer to their goal as seniors.

The first few weeks were spent in renewing old acquaintances and making new ones. With Mr. Day as class sponsor, the group confidently joined in the school activities.

The Good Will dance, the Halloween masquerade, the skating parties, the holiday festivities,—all were the source of much enjoyment to the students. Most important to them was their own skating party, the only source of income for the class treasury.

The time for those fearful county examinations approached and thoughts were buried in books. However, one calls upon surplus strength in time of desperation and the group dug deep and emerged victorious. Their dream of becoming freshmen is now a reality.

A class in special education was organized by the county office and Mrs. Pounds was selected as the teacher. During the term she was replaced by Mrs. Colbert. Much progress was noted in the advancement of the individuals.

Seventh Grade . . .

The seventh grade students of Echo joined local pupils in beginning their climb up the ladder of education. Art, music, shop, home economics, and gym classes proved new and interesting. Moving from room to room seemed strange as the group began their high school carreer. All students displayed interest in their subjects and soon became accustomed to their new environment. Mr. Dean is sponsor of the group.

Junior high school athletics attracted many of the boys in whose hearts burned the desire to become football, basketball, and baseball stars for future Blue Jay teams.

The social activities of the school also provided a new thrill for these students. A skating party in March gained a nice profit for the class treasury. A good time was had by all. Time passed, and jealously we watched upperclassmen conduct their final activities of the year. Members of the class couldn't quite understand why fate decrees that youth must grow by degrees. The group looks forward anxiously to returning next year as eighth graders.

GLOW-BALL

MANY SOCIAL PROBLEMS WERE SOLVED

The Y-TEENS successfully completed many activities during the year. Because of the size of the organization, it was divided into two sections. The senior group, comprising eleventh and twelfth grade students was named "Alpha"; while the junior members, originating in the ninth and tenth grades, formed the "Beta" group. The Y-Teens were sponsored by Mrs. Hargreaves and Mrs. Russell.

The entertainment committee sponsored a Can-Can dance early in December to secure food used in furnishing a large basket for a needy family during the Christmas holidays. The season's program was topped off with a tea for the faculty.

An annual spaghetti dinner was enjoyed by all members. The club also held a Sweetheart Ball on St. Valentine's Day for the entire student-body. The year's activities were climaxed with a week-end at Blue Knob camp.

CLUBS

YOUR SAFETY IS OUR RESPONSIBILITY

The SCHOOL SAFETY PATROL consists of a group of young boys who devote their time toward maintaining safety at street crossings during school dismissal. Although these boys are all from junior high school, they bear well this great responsibility. Mr. Medler, sponsor of the group, used patrol boys on a television safety program during the year.

Guided by their officers and with Miss Vujcich as their sponsor, the members of the DRAMATICS CLUB were eager to show their ability as thespians. Many one-act plays were directed by student members and were presented as a part of assembly programs. Marguerite Birus handled a student production for the talent show in January. Proceeds were used to purchase a spotlight for the auditorium.

THESE SERVE MANY USEFUL PURPOSES

What play would be complete without the boys "behind the scene"? Under the direction of Mr. Margetan, the STAGE CREW works long hours in setting up scenery for class plays and various assembly programs. The Spring Concert and commencement exercises require special preparation. This year the members built new scenery. They deserve congratulations for a job well done.

The LIBRARY CLUB is composed of twenty student volunteer workers who devote an hour or two per week to helping in the library. This affords an extra opportunity to read interesting and good books. Members are assigned various tasks, such as indexing and mending books. They learn library routine and procedures and are proving capable of good library management.

As a stage hand, Barry was always on the job.

CLUBS

TO SERVE BUSINESSMEN IS THEIR AIM

The COMMERCIAL CLUB is composed of enthusiastic commercial students. Meetings are held the second and fourth Mondays of the month during lunch hour. The club is organized to give its members further knowledge of commercial work. Through the leadership of Miss Galbraith and Mr. Dean, the commercial club contributes toward many new office machines. The club is headed by President Carole Hunt.

Under the direction of Mr. Dean, the office practice group was assigned individually as SECRETARIES to the members of the teaching staff. This is designed to acquaint the prospective office worker with an overall survey of office procedures which include indexing and filing techniques, general clerical information, handling of dictating and transcribing machines, and a thorough knowledge of duplicating methods.

PEP CLUB

If you attended any of the football games, you must have seen and heard the large group of students flanking the band, cheering their team to victory. Their enthusiasm and school spirit contributed much to the interest and enjoyment of our games. Winning or losing—this group of students, known as the PEP CLUB, possessed the school spirit that could not be dampened even by defeat.

The Pep Club, under the sponsorship of Miss Thomas made formations with the band and cheerleaders at several of the football games. These students faithfully practiced their drills until perfection was achieved. The white jerseys with the blue F's added a special glow to the group.

The club's interest did not lie in football alone. The members supported the basketball team just as loyally. The officers were responsible for providing bus transportation to many of the out-of-town contests.

The club broadened its scope of activity by urging student support of all school projects.

KEY CLUB

MANY WILL BE LEADERS OF TOMORROW

Mr. Medler and Mr. Margetan headed the KEY CLUB as sponsors, with Mr. Seese serving as Key Club advisor. The officers for the year included: Robert Jancar, president; Steve Oparnico, secretary; and Daniel Popp, treasurer. The aim of the club is to develop initiative and leadership among its members, to provide experience in living and working together, and to serve the school and the community rather than to seek personal gain. The Key Club members operated the school store and patrolled the halls during noon hour with the thought of "Safety First," the motto of the school. Members cared for lunch time entertainment, providing dancing in the gym. Many social activities were held within the group.

One of the most worthwhile projects of the Key Club was the sponsorship of the March of Dimes campaign within the school. The student-body cooperated whole heartedly and the project was a complete success. The club was represented at the state convention.

Jean is pronounced a winner at the Halloween party by Mr. Medler.

ASSEMBLY

The ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE, an organization for the purpose of having student participation in the selection of appropriate movies and of urging increased pupil activity in assembly programs, was organized by Mr. Hite. Many recent movies were shown during the year at a very nominal fee. The group enlisted the aid of classes, homerooms, and clubs in providing entertainment for the student-body several times monthly. Its members also planned and carried into execution arrangements for moving pupils into and out of the auditorium within a minimum time period.

Football programs were sold by Vivian to build the senior treasury.

LATIN

While routine work is required of all students in Latin, many are capable of advancing more rapidly and of engaging in activities outside of classroom assignments. The LATIN CLUB, all members of which are A-B students in the language, opens to these students the opportunity to translate extra stories of early Roman life. Special stress is placed upon translations from English to Latin. One of the features of the group was an original skit in which were presented the many advantages to be derived from the sudy of the language. Mr. Hite is the sponsor.

YEARBOOK AIDES

Making the Jayonian a complete and well-finished product requires work on the part of students other than seniors. To help with this task, a group called YEARBOOK AIDES was organized. Meetings were held with the heads of the staff, and thus information pertaining to underclass activities was easily assembled. This experience proves invaluable to members when they later face the problem of producing a yearbook.

TAB CLUB

Interest in reading ranks high in our school; as a result, the students needed little encouragement in the formation of the TAB Club, an abbreviation for Teen Age Book Club. Members recruited from grades 9-12, are given the opportunity to purchase copies of good books at reduced cost. Carole Hunt serves as secretary, and monthly purchases are averaging about fifty books. The group is sponsored by Mr. Hite.

JAYONIAN

The completion of this 1957 edition of the Jayonian brings relief from a burden of many weary hours of writing, re-writing and proof-reading to the staff headed by Barbara Dimond and Elaine Foltin as co-editors-in-chief. The services of Carole Hunt proved invaluable as managing editor. She was assisted by Robert Jancar. George Pazin was responsible for the many outstanding pictures included within its covers. The editing of this publication and the fund raising campaigns were directed by Mr. Hite and Mr. Salem.

MUSIC . . .

Do you like to sing? If you answer "yes", you are given the opportunity to enjoy it in our Mixed Chorus. The chorus is the "get-acquainted" group in our musical department, for almost everyone with an interest in music is in it. Many people do not realize the fun that can be had in rehearsing. The songs are very challenging and student directors add to the fun.

The highlight of the music season is the Spring Concert. The Mixed Chorus is always represented on the program. It is an impressive sight. The girls' gowns of beautiful pastel colors remind one of a brilliant rainbow with its "pot of gold," the harmonious melodies of Roger and Hammerstein's South Pacific. Indeed, one may easily imagine that he is actually in the South Pacific.

BAND . . .

SENIOR COLOR GUARD
Gustkey, Kobal, Fuller, Stetz.

The Franklin-East Taylor Joint High School Band consists of sixty members. During the 1956-57 football season, the marching band participated in the half-time activities at all the games. It was aided at the Conemaugh-Franklin game by a newly-formed drill unit of eighty girls. It paraded also during many of the local community events. Much credit must be given to its members for their extra hours of practice and their desire to present a well organized, correctly uniformed group.

The Concert Band prepared a short, but varied program for the Spring Concert. Under the direction of several student directors, the concert group played all of its selections from memory. This required many extra hours of hard work and created a new challenge to the group. The results spoke well for their efforts.

The members organized and elected officers. Excellent cooperation and harmony was thus created between the group and director, Miss Thomas.

Dance Band . . .

TO MODERN YOUTH DANCING IS A "MUST"

Franklin-East Taylor High School has one of the finest dance bands in the county. The group can be depended upon to provide entertainment at all school functions. It is always one of the first musical groups to be organized at the beginning of the school term. Under the direction of Miss Thomas, the band annually provides entertainment for dances following the Conemaugh-Franklin football game and at Halloween, Christmas, and Valentine parties. Their presence adds flavor between the acts of our school plays. The Dance Band consists of twenty members who also work very diligently, sacrificing many hours of their time, in preparation for the Spring Concert. This group of musicians deserves many thanks and congratulations for a splendid job well done during the year.

DRAMATICS

As the curtains were drawn at the end of the third act, November 9, 1956, the enthusiastic applause of the audience was the reward for many weeks of rehearsal.

The seniors had presented a three-act comedy entitled "No More Homework."

The directors of the play, Mr. Hite and Mr. Salem, spent many nerve-racking hours with the cast in order to help make the play a success. Their patience was essential; the four weeks of rehearsal were filled with much never-to-be-forgotten clowning, but then the group really settled down to work in order to present a successful play.

With the opening of the curtain, many found themselves extremely nervous; but there were others who were "old timers" for they had made their debut in their junior class play, "Love is in the Air."

The entire cast will never forget the many hours spent at practice—the confusion of learning lines and of last minute preparations—the thrill and fright when the curtain opened—and finally, when the curtain fell, the satisfaction one receives from a job well done.

Football . . .

Pre-season football prospects for coaches Gjurich and Patcher loomed brightly as ten lettermen from last year answered the first call for candidates. The Jays failed to secure a training camp, but this did not discourage the boys. They responded eagerly to conditioning exercises and mapped strategic plans for their offensive and defensive maneuvers.

Johnstown Catholic provided the first opposition and stopped the Jays in a fine game. This defeat only stimulated the local boys and the following week they trounced a hardy Southmont eleven.

Three consecutive losses were handed to the Jays as they found themselves outweighed and outmanned by their opponents.

The highlight game of the season was the annual contest with the Conemaugh Iron Hores. They met at the Point Stadium and for the third consecutive season, the Jays handed their arch-rivals a one point loss, 13-12.

In a sea of mud Ferndale held the locals to a scoreless tie. A 21-14 win over Nanty-Glo completed the schedule.

Gridiron Heroes . . .

GEORGE APPLEY'S blocking and tackling sparked the Jay's line play. As an end, HARRY CHILTON proved great on defense. DONALD HEADRICK was a fine defensive artist as a halfback. The open field running of DAVID HESS gave him scoring honors. DONALD JACOBY was a three year letterman at center. LEWIS JAMES was one of the district's leading tackles. The aggressiveness of EDWARD KALINYAK stopped opponents on many occasions. The switch of RICHARD KEIPER to end was an asset to the team. The speed of GARY McCANN gave life to the offensive line. LARRY McCANN was always a threat to break away for a touchdown. ROBERT MICIK'S desire to play made him spearhead many an attack. A triple threat artist, WILLIAM POPP, was a great quarterback. FRED SHOEMAKER received recognition on the all-district eleven. The alert defensive safety man for the team was DEAN THOMAS.

Court Heroes . . . THEY GAVE THEIR BEST

Sophomore MILAN GJURICH was the smallest player on the team, but displayed great cage ability on the court. SYLVESTER HOLMES, a freshman, showed great potentiality as a rebound artist and as an uncanny shot. Senior ROBERT JANCAR was one of the outstanding point-getters for the Jays and kept the opposition on their toes. His outside set shots plus his constant threat to drive under the basket made junior MICHAEL MASTOVICH feared by all. Senior FRANCIS O'HALA, despite his lack of height, played great defensive ball and was always good for his share of points. His hustle and his ability to control the boards made senior STEPHEN OPARNICO an asset to the team. Junior DANIEL POPP proved a thorn in the side of all opposition with his eagle-eye shooting. The tallest player on the team was senior GEORGE WALZ who added many points by his alertness and rebound work.

Basketball . . .

The echo of the whistle marking the end of the final game of the football season had scarcely faded away when coach Gjurich issued the call for basketball practice. "Many are called but few are chosen," truly may be applied to the squad of 1957 as nine varsity and ten junior varsity candidates were selected to represent the Blue and White.

Thus began a season which was most disastrous from the "win" point of view and yet, there looms on the distant horizon the ray of hope that the clubs of the next few years will be outstanding.

Lack of height, erratic playing, and poor shooting marked the downfall of the Blue Jays in early season games. However Coach Gjurich juggled his combination many times and toward the end of the season had a quintet which was marked by a classy passing attack and a "never-say-die" spirit, although still handicapped by smallness of stature.

CHEERLEADERS

The cheerleaders started their year with many new ideas and a new advisor, Miss Thomas. She proved exceptionally helpful since she was at all games with the band and she could give first-hand direction to the activities of the squad.

The girls spent many days after school learning new cheers and perfecting the old ones. Miss Thomas also used them in a special half-time performance, "Spotlight on Cheerleaders," at the Conemaugh-Franklin game.

Much pleasure was derived by the group in leading the crowd in the various yells and in the singing of the Alma Mater. The loyal support of the student body is always encouraging to the team.

BASEBALL

Early Spring found thirty eager and willing candidates answering Coach Milan Gjurich's call for baseball tryouts. Two weeks later the squad was cut to eighteen and the time for the first game drew near. Weak hitting and poor fielding prevented the team from having a successful season, but the experience gained will prove invaluable in future years.
